

2014 Oregon Listing Results — Summary

— Paul T. Sullivan, McMinnville, OR

Congratulations are in order for Diana Byrne, who did an Oregon big year in 2014 and jumped into fifth place on the all-time big year list, with 352 species recorded. Congratulations, Diana.

Congratulations, too, to Wayne Weber for becoming the 17th person to see 100 species in each of Oregon's 36 counties, and to Paul Sullivan, who becomes the first person to see 200 species in each of Oregon's 36 counties.

Congratulations to John Sullivan and Tom Snetsinger for reaching the threshold of 400 species on their Oregon Life Lists.

Last but not least, a new record has been set for species seen in Oregon. Jeff Gilligan has seen 499 species in the state, 94% of the 532 species on the official checklist. Congratulations, Jeff.

The Listing Results below include the reports of 121 birders who submitted numbers, including 16 new participants, plus 146 records carried forward from other participants, and 17 deceased birding friends. Going through these records, I always fondly remember those kindly friends with whom I shared time afield.

County Year Records

Several birders made a special effort in one particular county and set new county year list records. Congratulations to them for their accomplishments.

New county year record set in 2014:

202	Russ Namitz	Josephine

County Life Records

It regularly happens that birders with the leading Life List in their home county add a species or two and increase their total. Special mentions go to Don Coggsell in Columbia County, Kevin Spencer in Klamath County, Roy Gerig in Marion County, and Aaron Skirvin in Umatilla County for their outstanding efforts this year.
